British Fencing National Academy, Brunel

This document contains essential information for all fencers and coaches who would like to take part in the National Academy, Brunel training programme.

Background

Long Term Athlete Development (LTAD) is a holistic training and education framework which seeks to give British fencers the education and skills they need to reach their full potential as successful senior athletes. The National Academy is the catalyst for British Fencing to achieve this.

The formal launch of the British Fencing National Academy took place in 2010 with 2 pilot training days and a residential week at Nottingham Trent University. The programme was repeated in 2011 and now includes regional centres offering monthly training.

Upwards of 1000 fencers will be included within the National Academy activities by 2013 aligned with the aspiration to have all National Squads and National Teams selected from the National Academy fencers.

The National Academy has been established to deliver British Fencing's vision of becoming a "world leading fencing family", and has three areas of focus:

- Talent Development
- Workforce Development
- Club Development

With the development of National Academy Regional centres we are developing a national programme which will start to roll out nationwide over the next few years. It will deliver support to fencers, coaches and parents through a national and regional framework and in time will have support through a "virtual National Academy" with online resources.

The National Academy aspires to bring together world leading experts in a range of fields such as psychology, strength and conditioning, injury prevention, recovery, physiotherapy, nutrition whilst balancing education with sport and planning, to achieve the aim of producing successful senior International fencers.

The LTAD document for British Fencing is available on the British Fencing web site at www.britishfencing.com/academy/ltad/.

N.B. There is a standing invitation to the personal coaches of any National Academy fencer to attend any National Academy session (providing these coaches are suitably registered).

Coaches

Lead coach Jes Smith runs the British Fencing National Academy, Brunel. He is assisted by the weapon coaches Steven Davey, Pierre Harper, Jamie Miller, Rob Partridge, and Pavel Rynes

Brunel University

British Fencing have made an agreement with Brunel University to help deliver the National Academy on a regional level.

Brunel has hosted the National Academy national training weekend in Feb 2011 and the team preparation day for the British Cadet team for the European championships, some of you will also know it at the venue for the British School Team Championships.

Brunel's sporting tradition

Brunel is not only a centre of excellence in the academic study of sport sciences, but also in the achievements of its students. This is illustrated by the number of graduates, students and staff across the University who have represented their country as competitors and coaches.

Brunel is part of the English Institute of Sport network, and has partnerships with top local sports clubs

With over £14 million invested in a new sports and fitness complex, we now have some of the best university sports facilities around. Details of Brunel's outstanding sports facilities can be seen at <http://www.brunel.ac.uk/life/sport/insport>

Costs

The setup of the programme is part of the England Development Project and as such will use resources and expertise developed for the Academy as well as officer time assigned to this project. However the programme must be set up in such a way that will be sustainable for the long-term goals and processes that are being put in place now. Because of this the sessions will cost of £40 for each fencer.

This payment can be done by posting a cheque to British Fencing or over the phone to the British Fencing office (there will be a £2 surcharge for this).

Timetable

Each day will start at 9am and will finish at 5pm. Full timetable will be published for each training day.
